Oil jumped to highest levels since March as the rally in the oil markets continues. "The rally in the crude futures is beginning to approach levels in which U.S. shale production declines will begin to slow and possibly reverse as low cost producers attempt to generate revenue," Jim Ritterbusch, president of Ritterbusch and Associates said in a report. At the same, there are signs of recovering fuel usage based on mobility data from Apple and Google. Some of the major airlines are also reporting slower ticket cancellations and improvement in booking on certain routes. Of course overall demand remains weak. So far in May, OPEC+ has cut oil exports by about 6 million bpd, according to companies that track the flows, suggesting a strong start in complying with the deal. OPEC says the market has responded well. WTI traded up $.43 or 1.28% to close at $33.92. Brent traded up $.21 or .59% to close at $35.96.
