Market Commentary

Oil prices were mostly flat today after yesterday's strong session as increased measures to control the spread of the virus are putting a damper on implied demand. "Concerns of more lockdowns are hurting near-term demand expectations," said Phil Flynn, senior analyst at Price Futures Group in Chicago, noting the market was balancing those concerns against prospects that a vaccine will allow oil demand to return to normal. Bloomberg is reporting a very different supply picture in Asia where demand has largely recovered from the impact of COVID. Asian countries are snapping up barrels from all over the globe where in the US and Europe restrictions are limiting movement and consumption. They added "The structure of Oman futures on the Dubai Mercantile Exchange has surged into a bullish backwardation -- indicating tight supplies -- in recent days." WTI traded up $.09 or .22% to close at $41.43. Brent traded down $.07 or -.16% to close at $43.75.
