Market Commentary

Today Egypt announced that their oil and gas companies are set to launch their new oil and gas exploration by the end of this month. Since the discovery of the giant gas field Zohr in Egyptian waters in 2015, oil majors have been interested in natural gas and oil exploration in Egypt and its offshore area. Chevron and Exxon were among the companies that signed exploration deals last month.

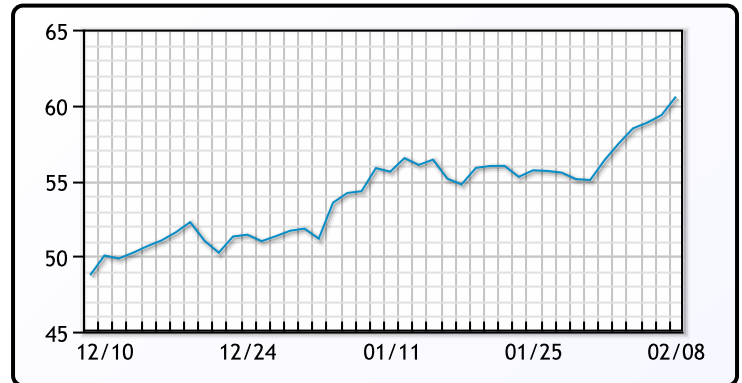

In Venezuela, two former managers of its' state oil firm PDVSA were jailed for providing sensitive data to the United States. "These officials leaked sensitive and confidential information from the oil industry, which resulted in the imposition of sanctions by the US government, which have caused significant financial damage to the industry by limiting the marketing of its products internationally," Attorney General Saad stated at the end of the trial. According to the parents of the two former PDVSA managers, they supported the "Socialist Revolution" of Nicolas Maduro, but have been singled out as criminals because they had publicly spoken about corruption at Venezuela's state oil firm
