Another rough day in the markets Folks. U.S. crude futures settled down $1.13, or 1.7 per cent, to $65.46/bbl. Brent crude ended down 80 cents, or 1.2 per cent, US$68.23/bbl. Investors remain worried about the outlook for fuel demand as COVID-19 cases surge worldwide just as more supply reaches the market from large global producers, including the U.S. Oil benchmarks have been under pressure for the last few weeks due to the rise in infections caused by the Delta variant of the coronavirus worldwide. Several countries have re-introduced strict travel restrictions and air traffic has softened in recent weeks. According to the EIA Crude inventories fell by 3.2 million bbls in the week ending August 13 to 435.5 million bbls, exceeding estimates for a 1.1 million-bbl drop. U.S. gasoline stocks rose by 696,000 bbls in the week to 228.2 million bbls, Distillate stockpiles, which include diesel and heating oil, fell by 2.7 million bbls in the week to 137.8 million bbls, versus expectations for a 276,000-bbl rise. Many see the drop in crude as a buying opportunity. A recent report showed that companies are hording cash (7.3 trillion) for potential emergency to weather out the storm in case some of the new restrictions affect economic growth. Equities had a rough day with the DOW losing 382 points on the day, the Nasdaq loosing 130 points and last but not least the S&P losing 47 points.
